Introduction. Self-inflicted lip trauma is a potential complication of dental treatment involving local anesthesia of the inferior alveolar nerve, particularly among children (Jorgensen & Hayden, 1965). A branch of the mandibular division of the trigeminal nerve, the inferior alveolar nerve is located bilaterally and is responsible for

for patient management, the dentist should carefully review the patient's medical history. In this context, the American Society of Anesthesiologists (ASA) Physical Status Classification System can be helpful (Table 38-1). This assessment tool can be used to estimate the patient's overall ability to tolerate the stress of a planned procedure.
